I regret that I did not begin this work earlier that I might have made it include more of the younger members of the family. Should you desire that I do this will you not kindly make copies of your family records and send them to me. I shall be only too glad to continue and complete the outline. Most of the outline has been from memory and necessarily will be found imperfect. I trust, however, that it may prove to be a basis for a more general and complete one in the near future. I invite corrections and trust I shall receive data that this crude effort may be so revised as to be of value to those who may come after us.

James H. Kennedy.
